RINGING

A Quiet Fourth Fifty Years Ago-Academy Prize Readings Inaugurated By Young Ladies of 1864-Norwich and Worcester Four Per Cent. Dividend.

In Norwich fifty years ago, the Fourth did not bring a whole lot of disturbance; some gunpowder was burned, but too much of it had been used elsewhere to make its employment at home very spectacular. The pursuits of peace were more in evidence, such as prize speaking, even a concert by the Norwich Brazs band, a long-time forerunner of our municipal concerts. These items are taken from the Bulletin of July 1364:

July 7.—The following is a list of casualties among officers of the 11th regiment, June 18th:

Capt. W. H. Sackett, killed: Capt. R. H. Rice, 2nd Lieut., S. S. Gilbert, 2nd. Lieut., and David A. Heog, wounded.

Franklin Square Fight on Fourth.

July 6, 1864.—The Fourth passed off very quietly in this city, all public excursions, picnics etc., were extremely paironized and private parties induiged in similar amusements. The boys burnt their fingers with gunpowder and made themselves as uncomfortabe as usual. A fight on Franklin Square just a dusk, drew an attendance of about a million small boys, women and with babies at their breasts and dogs.

The following morning they arrived in Newport R. I. They remained at Newport intil Friday, the 3d, when they left for Onset, Mass., making their headquarters in that place. They also visited the Cape Cod canal, Cottage City and other places of interest. The weather was unusually cold and the water was quite rough throughout the entire trip and during a part of the time the men rode through waves that washed over the sides of the launches, thoroughly soaking the passengers. In spite of the rough weather the launches, thoroughly soaking the passengers. In spite of the rough weather was encountered on the trip from Newport to Onset. The parties enjoyed one good day of fishing in Buzzards Bay last by William G. Baker, and Beth. owned Onset. The parties enjoyed one good day of fishing in Buzzards Bay last day of haning in Buzzards hay last Monday and the sea bass caught tipped the scales at 50 pounds.

The Winnie, Mr. Baker's launch, arrived back in Norwich on Thursday night, but the Beth did not get in until Friday morning, as Mr. Hall and party decided to stay over night in Stonington.
